CENTENARY OF CZESLAW SLANIA'S BIRTH

Born in Poland in 1921, Czeslaw Slania was passionate about drawing from childhood. He studied engraving at the School of Fine Arts in Kraków, and developed his talent in intaglio. He threw himself wholeheartedly into this painstaking discipline. Slania began his philatelic career in his country of origin in 1951. In 1960, by which time he had been living in Sweden for several years, he managed to secure employment as an engraver with the Swedish postal service. Slania would go on to produce some 450 stamps for the country. His 600 other creations were exported to more than 30 countries, including Monaco, making him the most prolific stamp engraver in the world. In 1972, he received the extremely honoured title of Royal Court Engraver of Sweden. A meticulous worker whose creations are unmatched, he produced his dies in just a few days with enormous attention to detail. Slania died in Kraków in March 2005, having left his mark on the history of philately.

25TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE MUSEUM OF STAMPS AND COINS

Established by Sovereign Ordinance of Prince Rainier III in December 1995, the Monaco Museum of Stamps and Coins opened to the public in January 1996. It hosts the stamp and coin collections of the Prince of Monaco, which are some of the most stunning and widely renowned in the world. The coin collection focuses on coins issued by the Princes of Monaco and finds made within the Principality during the nineteenth century. A special room, known as the rare stamps room, houses rare stamps and coins on an alternate basis during prestigious international exhibitions in which the museum participates. One of the things which makes the museum unique is that it also exhibits the machines and tools used to manufacture stamps and coins. A large stamp printing press and a large coining press, which was used from 1837 to 1838 in the mint then installed in the Prince's Palace in Monaco.

ENDANGERED NATIONAL WILDLIFE – HIPPOCAMPUS GUTTULATUS

Europa stamps are among the most collected stamps in the world. This year, PostEurop has chosen to highlight "endangered national wildlife". The stamp represents the long-snouted seahorse, Hippocampus guttulatus, recognizable by the shape of its elongated snout and its body covered with filaments. Seahorses are mainly threatened by habitat loss and degradation caused by coastal development and destructive fishing gear.

BICENTENARY OF THE BIRTH OF GUSTAVE FLAUBERT

Gustave Flaubert was born in Rouen in 1821 into a petty bourgeois family. After studying law, which did not interest him much, he turned to writing and got down to writing his novel Madame Bovary. Published in 1856, the work revolutionized romantic writing with its realistic style but earned him a trial, from which he was acquitted, for insulting public morality and good morals. In 1862, he also met with success thanks to Salammô, while in 1869, L'Education sentimentale was poorly received by critics. Exhausted by his nervous illness and his financial problems, the writer died in Croisset on May 8, 1880, leaving unfinished the great satirical work Bouvard and Pécuchet which he had started in June 1874.

THE RACERS

Depicting the French poster for Henry Hathaway's film The Racers, released in 1955. The hero, a racing driver, has only one thing on his mind: winning and proving his superiority. In pursuit of his victories and shaving seconds or fractions of seconds from his adversary's time, he not only risks his own life, but also endangers the lives of other drivers through his reckless behaviour. When on the track, he forgets everything: the rules of the sport, friendship and even love, the love of a most enchanting and patient woman. It is not until he almost kills one of his fellow drivers and is abandoned, for a time, by the young woman that he understands that honouring his profession does not always mean breaking records.

THE RED SHOES

Released in 1948, this British film by Michael Powell and Emeric Pressburger impresses with its modernity. Martin Scorsese and Brian de Palma, among others, have cited it as their favourite film. Victoria, a dancer with a very prestigious ballet company, finds herself performing the leading role in The Red Shoes, a production inspired by an Andersen fairy tale. The ballet challenges the acceleration of contemporary societies with infinite grace. The heroine is torn between her passion for dance, with all the discipline and austerity that implies, and her love for Julian, the conductor. Must she give up love for art, or art for love? Does creativity inherently entail sacrifice? This is indeed a tragic tale, but it is a dazzling one.

BAY OF ANGELS

La Baie des Anges (Bay of Angels) is a French film written and directed by Jacques Demy. It was released in 1963. The film tackles the theme of gambling head on. Introduced to the pastime by a colleague, a young bank clerk discovers the exhilaration of gambling. He sets off for Nice where the casinos are thriving, and there he meets Jackie – played by Jeanne Moreau – who burns with the same passion, and with whom he falls madly in love. It is this love that will save them both from their vice.

BICENTENARY OF THE BIRTH OF FYODOR DOSTOYEVSKY

An emblematic writer of 19th century Russia, Fyodor Dostoyevsky (1821-1881) left a deep mark on the literary landscape. At the end of a childhood touched by pain and mourning, he entered the progressive intellectual circles of Saint Petersburg and became involved in politics. Arrested by the Tsar and sentenced to four years in prison in Siberia, he discovered the victimized popular layers. He then reconnects with the liberals and becomes a convinced nationalist. Inspired by his readings, especially by Balzac, Dostoyevsky began to publish novels early on. His writing features complex and ambiguous characters who are constructed through their social interactions, as in Crime and Punishment or The Brothers Karamazov. His tormented work, haunted by the search for authenticity, sets out to describe the world in all its reality. His career continues to oscillate between exaltation and disillusion, and it is only very late that he is recognized.

150TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE BIRTH OF MARCEL PROUST

Born in Paris in 1871 into a bourgeois family, Marcel Proust studied literature at the Sorbonne from which he graduated in 1895. He rubbed shoulders with writers and other artists in aristocratic salons, which aroused in him a great interest in writing. In 1907, he began writing his novel In Search of Lost Time, the first volume of which, entitled Swann's Way, appeared in 1913. In 1919, he won the Prix Goncourt for the sequel, In the Shadow of Young Girls in Flowers. The book represented on the stamp, Letters to the Duke of Valentinois, contains letters addressed by Proust to his friend Prince Pierre of Monaco. This correspondence had been kept secret until 2016, when they appeared in the Annales monégasques, a historical review published by the Archives of the Palace of Monaco.

400TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE BIRTH OF JEAN DE LA FONTAINE

Born in 1621 in Château-Thierry, Jean de La Fontaine is the best known of the 17th century French poets, and he was in his time, if not the most admired, at least the most read, notably thanks to his Tales and his Fables. A dazzling stylist, he carried the fable, a genre before him minor, to a degree of achievement that remains unsurpassed. Moralist, not moralizing, he takes a lucid look at power relations and human nature, without forgetting to please in order to educate. His work occupies a prominent place in the French cultural heritage and certain precepts have entered popular wisdom.

MONTE CARLO MADNESS

The stamp shows the Swedish poster for the German film Bomben auf Monte Carlo (Monte Carlo Madness), directed by Hanns Schwarz. This musical comedy, which was released in 1931, is the adaptation of a novel by Friedrich Reck-Malleczewen. It tells the story of the captain of a boat flying the flag of the Kingdom of Pontenero who goes to Monte-Carlo to meet the local Consul and demand his wages and those of his crew. The Queen of Pontenero, who has stowed away on board, manipulates the captain by making him gamble at the casino.
